Dusit Guam Hotels and The Plaza are part of the Tanota family of companies.

Tanota Partners was founded by former Senator Alfred C. Ysrael and his wife, Diana Z. Ysrael. The company is currently run by their son, Michael Z. Ysrael and daughter, Donna Baker.

The late Alfred C. Ysrael, the former chairman and president of Tanota Partners, spent the last 50 years growing and diversifying his business interests on the island, creating thousands of jobs for Guam's workforce and strengthening the island's economy. He arrived on Guam in 1952 as a guest worker with a 3-year contract to serve as an accountant for a military bowling alley. He purchased six surplus bowling lanes and opened the Anigua Bowling Alley. After becoming a U.S. citizen and serving in the U.S. Army, Alfred and Diana returned to their business interests while raising their 5 children: Michael, Elizabeth, Mariana, Catherine, and Donna.

In the late 1960's Mr. Ysrael opened the Fujita Hotel, catering to the Japanese tourists who arrived too late in the evening to secure hotel rooms. Mr. Ysrael also invested in bringing the Hilton International to Guam and remained a shareholder in the Hilton Guam Resort & Spa for many years.. In 1987, he built the SunRoute, Ohana Hotel, the Regency Ohana, the Plaza Center and other retail establishments. In 1999, Tanota Partners oversaw the construction operation of the Outrigger Guam Resort. In addition to building and operating multiple hotels, the company also developed numerous apartment buildings.

The Ysrael family are well known for their long-standing and generous contributions to the community including their investments in the island's youth through swimming, soccer, and Tae Kwon Do teams on Guam. Additionally, they have provided significant support to athletes representing Guam in the South Pacific Games, the Guam National Olympic Committee, etc. The family has also been instrumental in raising funds to increase awareness about breast cancer on Guam through the Guam chapter of the American Cancer Society and Strides for the Cure, which focuses on educating the youth of Guam through cancer awareness.

Mr. Ho Eun is the Chairman of Core Tech International. He is responsible for the overall corporate direction/decision making among all Core Tech entities including Guam CDE, LLC.

Core Tech International was founded in 1991 as a family owned and operated general contractor specializing in commercial and retail construction. The company was originally named Sun Woo Corporation. It is driven by its philosophy "Do the job right". It consistently strives to excel through hard work and dedication. Mr. Ho leads efforts to locate, source and select projects that the company will be involved with. Core Tech International Corporation has built thousands of residential houses for private and government sectors, constructed several schools and commercial buildings as well as numerous projects for the Department of Defense and Government of Guam.

Core Tech is recognized by Guam's Building Industry as a leader in construction and has garnered several awards in safety and excellence in construction.

Aside from the construction aspect of the company, Core Tech now consists of over 20 companies in different industries working together to make Guam a better place to live and work. Under Mr. Ho's leadership, Core Tech has grown from a general contractor building over 1,000 residential homes to becoming a multi-industry conglomerate to include real estate development, financing, and other supporting industries.

Core Tech International purchased the Bayview Hotel Guam, as well as the Oceanview Tower Hotel and Residences and Garden Court in Tumon.

The purchase transferred all the properties listed under Bayview V LLC, a subsidiary of Tanota Partners, to Core Tech.

The company also purchased the commercial center Pacific Place, which hosts Capricciosa and Outback Steakhouse, among other retail shops.

Core Tech also acquired all shares and assets of Tanota Rentals LLC, which had been the second-largest apartment and commercial property owner on Guam, consisting of more than 650 units of apartment and all office building and commercial buildings.

Core Tech International now has over 2000 apartment units on Guam.

Background Information:

The Dusit Guam has developed a training program for students who are interested in developing skills and knowledge in the hotel industry. The program provides participants ongoing theoretical training while at the same time receiving practical training in the hotel.

This training program is also designed to provide the trainees on-the-job exposure to United States techniques, methodologies, expertise, and enhances the participant's knowledge of the U.S. cultures and society.

All trainees are required to participate in training activities, and to complete assigned training projects. If a trainee fails to participate in the required activities, their visa will be terminated and he/she will need to return home at their own expense. Trainees will receive payment for their practical training period.

Introduction:

This training program offers trainees to learn by applying theory to working situations and prepares them for potential assignments within reasonable period of time, within the Dusit Group.

This manual contains an outline of on-the-job training schedule within each department that the trainee must be exposed in. It includes specific procedures and directions the trainee will follow as well as checklists to be completed after each phase of training. This will ensure the consistency in the training delivery throughout the period. At the end of each rotation, the trainee's performance will be evaluated by the Head of Department, who will monitor the progress being made and answer any question on a continual basis.

The Division Head, Department Heads and designated trainers should use this manual as a guideline to ensure that these trainees meet their objectives.

Objectives

The trainee will have an opportunity to learn the responsibilities of a supervisor in each area as part of their exposure to the department. The actual assignment will be dependent upon the trainee's ability to demonstrate appropriate initiative, skill and teamwork. Should a trainee not be able to train in a supervisory level initially, they will receive specific feedback and guidance about the skills they need to master and demonstrate to qualify during this training assignment. This will be done during their periodic evaluations providing them with suitable opportunities to develop and demonstrate their mastery of skills.

The training objectives of the Trainee Program are to:

Provide the trainee the opportunity to understand and perform each job and to gain practical experience in all phases of hotel operations including management.

Give the trainee a thorough understanding and appreciation of the operation of each department from the points of view of the department head; other members of management, the trainee's colleagues and employees within the department.

Allow the trainee to observe a wide range of daily operational situations and inter-departmental relationships as well as their support of each other.

Familiarize the trainee with Dusit Hotels and Resorts organizational structure, its policies and procedures.

Learn more about the U.S. culture, and the vast nationalities within the United States & its territories.

At the end of the training program, the trainee will be able to demonstrate the following supervisory skills:

- Understand the Dusit Vision, Mission and Values
- Understand Interviewing Techniques - Applicant Evaluation for the department.
- Learn procedures for Performance Appraisals and Evaluations
- Understand how to effectively train new employees
- Master skills in handling customer complaints and problems Learn Manager on Duty responsibilities

Theoretical Training assignments / Activities

Overview

This training program will benefit both the participant and the Dusit Guam. It is based upon the individual's career goals, previous work experience and academic preparation. Fine tuning of the training opportunities to ensure a progressive and challenging training environment for the participant normally occurs once the trainee arrives and is introduced to the variety of operations and opportunities for professional development. The program and specific assignments will be undertaken with the needs of the hotel and trainee in mind. Seasonal needs and peak demands will affect the timing of when some training objectives are available which may affect the order of rotations and skill development; however, the Host company remains committed to fulfilling the training objectives and this represents a realistic environment in which to understand the context of what is being learned. The overall structure for gaining and improving related skills and knowledge, techniques, and management skills and know-how is to observe, develop, and demonstrate mastery of the given subject matter before moving to the next area of training. This is frequently concurrent with other training objectives, and most training objectives form a base upon which subsequent training occurs.

To develop knowledge and familiarity of the property and the key skills needed to follow the hotel standard operational procedures as well as meet guest expectations, the trainee will rotate through a series of key departments designed to progressively improve their skills. Subsequent rotations will build on the skills the trainee initially acquires. The trainees will be rotating through all the departments of the hotel in order to understand how a five star hotel is organized and managed.

Roles and Responsibilities

1. Trainee's Role

Trainees should be involved in the activities of the department through actual assignments to the different workstations. The value of actual participation is much greater for the trainee than having him/her serve only as an observer.

Trainees are encouraged to ask questions and seek explanations from department heads and other employees. This will enhance their understanding of Dusit operational procedures and better prepare them for future assignments. Of course trainees should realize that all employees have their own work responsibilities. This may prevent them from responding to trainees' needs or requests immediately. A flexible and sensible approach, however, shall enable trainees to ultimately get the information and assistance they need.

Trainees will also add to their learning experience by recording pertinent information, observations, etc., in a departmental evaluation report. The evaluation report will be helpful in reviewing the departmental tasks during on-the-job training and their own progress. The Learning and Development Manager, Cluster Director of Human Resources and Regional Vice President of Operations/General Manager will review the report to assist the trainee in assessing his/her progress.

Trainees are to prepare a typewritten report following the guidelines set forth in Trainee's Report in this manual. The report shall be prepared immediately after completing the training in each department. Shortly after completing the report, the trainee should review it with the respective department head. This will ensure the trainee has a thorough understanding of that department. The trainee should then give a copy of the report to the Learning and Development Manager, Cluster Director of Human Resources and Regional Vice President of Operations/General Manager.

2. Trainer's role (Directors & Department Heads, Departmental Operational Trainers) Directors, Department Heads, Departmental Operational Trainers are expected to assume the actual role of trainers for the duration of a trainee's exposure in their department.
